

PEER REVIEW RESPONSE FORM

Writer's name: _____

Peer-reviewer's name: _____

Story title: _____

Sharing a story and receiving feedback can sometimes be uncomfortable. As you review your fellow-writer's story, remember to be:

- Sensitive to your peer's feelings
- Specific in your praise
- Detailed and constructive in your comments to help motivate in specific directions
- Gentle in your manner of speaking
- A courteous and careful listener.

	Yes	(or) No	More Detailed Response
Did the story grab you from the first sentence? Did you want to keep reading it?
Were there any areas where you stopped or halted your reading?
How did the story make you feel? What specific story elements caused the feeling or feelings?
Were there any areas where the actions of the protagonist angered or bothered you?
Give examples of words, dialogue and scenes that interested you. Tell why.
Does it end with a strong conclusion that makes you feel that it is completed? Where can you suggest specific improvements?

Mark any places in the draft where you had trouble reading and note whether a transition, clearer wording or additional detail would help the most.
